Dear Judge,

I am upset about the recent settlement between the Justice Department and Microsoft (PFJ). The PFJ does nothing to stop Microsoft from operating as a monopoly. Second, the settlement does not punish Microsoft for clearly violating anti-trust laws in the past. By letting Microsoft get away with its retaliation tactics, bolting schemes, and attacks on Java a terrible standard is being set. All these tactics lower competition in a supposedly free market and also limit software standards. Finally, the PFJ does not provide an effective enforcement mechanism for the weak restrictions it does implement.

I would request that you do your best to overturn this settlement.

Sincerely,
Tania Butler
